Dr. Elavie Ndura is an international education expert with over 20 years of experience in developing, implementing and managing intercultural education and Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages programs in the United States and Burundi. She is currently a tenured Professor of Education and Academic Program Coordinator of the Multilingual/Multicultural Education program (MME) in the George Mason University's College of Education and Human Development (CEHD). She is the founder and coordinator of the Shinnyo Fellowship for Peacebuilding through Intercultural Dialogue, a program which provides students with service and leadership experiences that enhance their critical social consciousness and their capacity to engage culturally diverse communities in transformative actions that contribute to intercultural understanding and peacemaking locally and globally. A prominent researcher and scholar, Professor Ndura leads interdisciplinary research projects examining educators’ cultural identity development and immigrants’ acculturation in the United States. She initiated and leads ground-breaking research examining educators’ perceptions of the role of education in peacebuilding; educators’ professional development needs and opportunities; and the contributions of teaching materials to peacebuilding in Burundi. She also leads the cross-country study of community-based peace education programs and practices in Burundi and Sierra Leone. She is co-author and co-editors of five books, and has authored more than 30 book chapters and professional journal articles. A frequently sought-after speaker, she has delivered numerous invited presentations and keynote addresses at international, national, and local professional meetings and other gatherings. Professor Ndura was a 2010-2011 Fellow at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars, and the recipient of the Peace and Justice Studies Association’s 2011 Peace Educator of the Year Award. She is the Sixte Vigny Nimuraba currently serves as a Genocide Prevention Program Assistant in the School for Conflict Analysis and Resolution (S-CAR) at George Mason University (GMU). He is also a Graduate student in S-CAR, GMU and a Shinnyo Fellow. As a Shinnyo Fellow, he is developing a year-long project through which he plans to bring together international and American-born GMU students through dialogue in order to foster peacebuilding dispositions through intercultural dialogue. He has extensive experience working with civil society and non-governmental organizations to promote social cohesion in Burundi. During his four year tenure with Ligue Iteka, the oldest and largest civil society organization in Burundi, he collaborated closely with UNHCR and other national and international human rights organizations to foster peaceful coexistence. In his capacity as Regional Coordinator within Ligue Iteka’s Monitoring of Returnees Project, he first coordinated resettlement and social cohesion activities in five Northern provinces (Ngozi, Kirundo, Kayanza, Muyinga and Karusi) and was then promoted to the position of Southern Regional Coordinator covering the provinces of Makamba, Bururi and Rutana which had a significantly larger population of returnees and a remarkably larger number of land conflicts to mitigate. Before joining Ligue Iteka, Vigny held different positions in local and international organizations such as VISPE, Care International, and CNLS, which inspired his passion to dedicate his life to the quest for peaceful coexistence and social cohesion in Burundi and the African Great Lakes region. Vigny holds a Bachelor’s degree in Economics from University of Ngozi (Burundi).
